Training

The International Narcotics Interdiction Association (INIA) is a non-profit organization dedicated to providing world class criminal/terrorism interdiction training. Since its inception in 1991, the INIA (also referred to as Skynarc) has trained thousands of local, state, federal and international law enforcement officers. INIA instructors include active and retired local, state, federal and international officers who have extensive experience in their field of law enforcement and are recognized by their peers as experts in their field.

INIA routinely conducts training domestically and internationally. INIA has conducted specialized training seminars for the U.S. State Department's International Narcotics Enforcement Management in Washington DC, The International Association of Chiefs of Police, State Officers Associations, DEA, HIDTA and at local training academies throughout the United States. INIA has also conducted criminal/terrorism interdiction training in over 30 countries worldwide.

The annual INIA international conference, which has been held since 1991, is regularly attended by interdiction officers worldwide. Next year the INIA conference will be in Louisville, KY in May 2013. To learn more about INIA and its training opportunities visit our website at www.inia.org.

In addition to the annual international training conference, INIA can bring the training to your agency. INIA has the ability to tailor training seminars to the specific needs of the host agency. Below is a list of classes currently offered by INIA:
